Awarded Distinguished Service Cross:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Arleux, France, September 17, 1918. During a patrol flight five American planes were attacked by twenty enemy Fokkers. During the combat, when Lieutenant Knotts saw one of his comrades attacked by seven enemy planes and in imminent danger of being shot down, he, although himself engaged with the enemy, went to the assistance of his comrade and attacked two of his immediate pursuers. In the fight which ensued he shot one of the enemy down in flames and forced the other out of control. His prompt act enabled his comrade to escape destruction, although his comrade's plane was so disabled that he made the allied lines with difficulty, crashing as he landed."

Cited by General Pershing:

"For distinguished and exceptional gallantry in action at Naves, France, on October 8, 1918."

"For gallantry in action at Awoingt, France, October 8, 1918 while on a bombing attack."

Awarded Distinguished Flying Cross (British) with the following citation:

"On August 25, 1918 he shot down from two thousand feet, over the Bapaume-Cambrai Road, one Fokker biplane.

"On September 13, 1918 he shot down from four thousand feet, near Inchy-en-Artois, northeast of Bapaume, one Fokker biplane.

"On September 17, 1918, with Lieutenant William T. Clements, he shot down from four thousand feet, near Arleux, a Fokker biplane.

"On September 22, 1918 he shot down from six thousand feet, near Marquion (east by south of Arras), a Fokker biplane.

"On September 24, 1918 he shot down from six thousand feet, just north of Bourlon Wood, two Fokker biplanes; while flying alone on the afternoon of the same date, trying to confirm and locate an enemy aeroplane shot down by Lieutenant Campbell in the forenoon, he saw a detachment of enemy troops on the Bapaume-Cambrai Road and at once attacked them; as he dived upon them he noticed at the side of the road past which the troops were marching a large ammunition dump, into which he fired incendiary tracer bullets which started several fires and in a few moments the dump blew up. The explosion was seen by many pilots who were in the air at that time, and by observers on the ground some fifteen miles away.

"On October 8, 1918, having completed a low bombing attack on enemy troops in Awoingt on which his flight had been sent out, Lieutenant Knotts saw a closed German staff car passing along the road through the villages of Naves. Of his own accord and although subjected to heavy machine-gun fire from nests along the road, he followed and attacked the car from just above the tree tops as it rushed through the village until it left the road and turned over. He then noticed two enemy officers roll out of the car, one of whom lay where he fell, and returning shot the other officer who had started to run away.

"Lieutenant Knotts' flying showed the greatest disregard of danger, and over and over again he did not hesitate to fly very low in spite of the fire from the ground, thereby bringing back valuable reconnaissance material and seriously harassing the enemy's movements during their retreat. Whilst so flying on October 4, 1918 his engine was put out of action by ground fire, east of Saulzoir, and he was made a prisoner. Whilst a prisoner in Germany he was subjected to great exposure and his physical condition has been such that he has been in hospital ever since his return."

Engagements: Baccarat sector, Aisne-Oise and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Awarded Légion d'Honneur. Awarded Congressional Medal of Honor:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action against the enemy at Charleaux, in the Forêt d'Argonne, France, 2-8 October, 1918. Captain McMurtry commanded a battalion which was cut off and surrounded by the enemy, and although wounded in the knee by shrapnel on 4 October and suffering great pain, he continued throughout the entire period to encourage his officers and men with a resistless optimism that contributed largely toward preventing panic and disorder among the troops who were, without food, cut off from communication with our lines. On 4 October during a heavy barrage, he personally directed and supervised the moving of the wounded to shelter before himself seeking shelter. On 6 October, he was again wounded in the shoulder by a German grenade, but continued personally to organize and direct the defense against the German attack on the position until the attack was defeated. He continued to direct and command his troops, refusing relief, and personally led his men out of the position after assistance arrived, before permitting himself to be taken to the hospital on 8 October. During this period, the successful defense of the position was due largely to his efforts."

Awarded Croix de Guerre with the following citation:

"Officier d'un courage et d'un dévouement admirables. Du 2 au 8 octobre, le bataillon qu'il commandait ayant été complètement isolé dans la forêt d'Argonne, a organisé la position qu'il occupait de façon à pouvoir résister à toutes les attaques. Quoique blessé à plusieurs reprises, a, par son action personnelle, maintenu son unité sous un violent bombardement, repoussant plusieurs attaques et ramenant lui-même son unité en ordre lorsqu'elle fut dégagée" (general order of the Army).

Guerra. Awarded Distinguished Service Cross:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Médéah Farm, France, October 3-9, 1918. He voluntarily joined an attacking battalion on October 3, and accompanied it to its final objectives. During the second attack on the same day he acted as runner through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. He visited the lines both night and day, where the fighting was most severe. When higher authority could not be reached, he assumed responsibilities and gave the necessary orders to stabilize serious situations. When new and untried troops took up the attack, he joined their forward elements, determined the enemy points of resistance by personal reconnaissance, uncovered enemy machine-gun nests, and supervised their destruction."

Awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with Distinguished Service Cross, for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Remenauville, France, September 12, 1918:

"On duty as regimental adjutant, while carrying instructions to the assaulting lines, he found the line unable to advance and being disorganized by a heavy machine-gun fire. Running forward in the face of the fire, this officer captured a German machine gun, drove off the crew, reorganized the line on that flank, and thereby enabled the advance to continue."

Awarded Croix de Guerre with the following citations:

"A marché en tête des troupes d'assaut avec quatre éclaireurs et, tout en observant notre avance, a capturé les cinq premiers prisonniers faits par nous" (general order of the Division).

"Le 3 octobre 1918, près de la Ferme de Médéah, a volontairement accompagné le bataillon d'attaque de son régiment jusqu'à ses derniers objectifs afin de faire connaître immédiatement le résultat atteint et obtenir le soutien de l'artillerie. A visité les endroits des premières lignes pour s'assurer que les liaisons et le ravitaillement n'étaient pas coupés et a fait preuve d'une remarquable initiative en assumant courageusement les responsabilités que nécessitait la situation dans un moment critique" (general order of the Army).

"Le 19 juillet 1918, au sud-ouest de Soissons, étant évacué et dirigé sur l'arrière, s'est empressé d'aller rejoindre son colonel sur le champ de bataille. A rendu de grands services en exécutant des reconnaissances et délivrant des ordres sous un violent feu d'artillerie et de mitrailleuses, jusqu'à ce qu'il soit relevé" (general order of the Army Corps).

"Volontaire pour monter à l'attaque, a, au cours de la même journée, rempli les fonctions d'agent de liaison en dépit d'un feu violent. A visité les lignes en tout instant dans les circonstances les plus périlleuses, faisant preuve d'une grande initiative pour rétablir des situations critiques" (general order of the Army).

"Pilote de premier ordre, calme et brave, modèle de devoir pour son escadrille. Le 6 juillet 1918, attaqué une première fois par une patrouille ennemie, la dispersa par sa manœuvre hardie et permit à son observateur de prendre les photographies désirées. Attaqué une deuxième fois, a abattu un de ses adversaires au cours d'un sévère combat; a terminé son vol par une reconnaissance à 500` metres d'altitude dans les lignes allemandes."

PLUMMER, CHARLES WARNER, A.B. '14. Second lieutenant Battery A, 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery; organization federalized July 25, 1917 and later designated Battery A, 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division; sailed for France September 10; detailed to various French schools for aerial observers; attached to 88th Aero Squadron; killed in action August 11, 1918 near Fismes, France. Engagements: Vesle sector (Fismes). Awarded Distinguished Service Cross, his name being mentioned in the following collective citation:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 11, 1918. Under the protection of three pursuit planes, each carrying a pilot and an observer, Lieutenants Bernheimer and Jordan, in charge of a photo plane, carried out successfully a hazardous photographic mission over the enemy's lines to the River Aisne. The four American ships were attacked by twelve enemy battle planes. Lieutenant Bernheimer, by coolly and skillfully maneuvering his ship, and Lieutenant Jordan by accurate operation of his machine gun, in spite of wounds in the shoulder and leg, aided materially in the victory which came to the American ships, and returned safely with thirty-six valuable photographs. The pursuit plane operated by Lieutenants Hitchcock and Burns was disabled while these two officers were fighting effectively. Lieutenant Burns was mortally wounded and his body jammed the controls. After a headlong fall of 2,500 meters, Lieutenant Hitchcock succeeded in regaining control of this plane and piloted it back to his airrome. Lieutenants McClendon and Plummer were shot down and killed after a vigorous combat with five of the enemy's planes. Lieutenants Babcock and Palmer, by gallant and skillful fighting, aided in driving off the German planes and were materially responsible for the successful execution of the photographic mission."

Awarded Croix de Guerre with the following citation;

"Le 24 juillet 1918, protégeant une mission sur les lignes ennemies a engagé le combat avec plusieurs avions allemands. Au cours du combat a reçu plus de trente balles dans son appareil, continuant son tir et réussissant à éloigner ses adversaires" (general order of the Army).

"Pilote adroit et audacieux, recherche toutes les occasions de combattre. A attaqué deux avions ennemis et a abattu l'un d'eux en vue de nos tranchées" (general order of the Army).

"Pilote de chasse de tout premier ordre. Attaquant une patrouille de dix monoplaces ennemis, a abattu l'un d'eux pendant que quatre autres tombaient désemparés et a mis en fuite le reste de la patrouille ennemie (septième victoire)" (general order of the Army).

Awarded Médaille Militaire with the following citation:

"Par son entrain, son adresse, son mépris du danger, se révèle comme un pilote de tout premier ordre. Attaquant récemment une patrouille de neuf avions ennemis, a abattu l'un d'eux. Le lendemain, au cours d'une mission de protection, a résolument attaqué une patrouille de huit appareils et a abattu deux de ses adversaires, remportant ainsi ses cinquième et sixième victoires. Trois citations."

Awarded Légion d'Honneur with the following citation:

"Pilote admirable de dévouement, d'une endurance, d'une volonté, et d'un courage exemplaires. En escadrille depuis six mois seulement, s'est de suite révélé comme un pilote exceptionnel d'une adresse et d'une habileté hors de pair. Infatigable, recherchant toutes les occasions de combattre, pousse la hardiesse jusqu'à la témérité, allant attaquer l'ennemi jusqu'à vingt kilomètres dans ses lignes. En moins d'un mois a abattu officiellement six avions ennemis, portant ainsi à neuf le nombre de ses victoires. Déjà quatre fois cité à l'ordre."

"For very conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the operations near the Butte de Warlencourt on 5th November, 1916 and night of 5th/6th November, 1916. Throughout that day and night Lieutenant Pyemont worked personally, without ceasing, on the difficult and dangerous task of keeping intact the telephone lines between advanced Brigade Headquarters and the assaulting Battalions under a shell fire which was so continuous that the lines were cut far more frequently than they could be mended. On at least one occasion Lieutenant Pyemont was thrown to the ground as he worked, by the explosion of shells close to him. The depth of the mud made movement so difficult as to render the work well-nigh hopeless. Lieutenant Pyemont, however, stuck to the task he had set himself with great gallantry and determination from start to finish. Lieutenant Pyemont has served throughout the war, being one of the original motor despatch riders who enlisted on the outbreak of war."

"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty North East of Langemarck on 23d of October 1917 to 9th of November 1917. He laid and maintained telephone lines to the advance brigade exchange under continuous shell fire. Though several times affected by gas, he refused to withdraw and inspired his men by his courageous example."

"For extraordinary heroism in action at Seicheprey, France, March 28, 1918. With great daring he led a patrol of our men into a dangerous portion of the enemy trenches, where the patrol surrounded a party nearly double their own strength, captured a greater number than themselves, drove off an enemy rescuing party, and made their way back to our lines with four prisoners, from whom valuable information was taken."

Awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the Distinguished Service Cross:

"For the following act of extraordinary heroism. At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918, he conducted himself fearlessly to obtain information of the enemy's action. Although wounded, he volunteered to reconnoiter the enemy's line, which was reported to be under consolidation. While making a sketch of the German position on this mission he was under heavy fire, and continued his work after being fatally wounded until it was completed. The injuries sustained at this time caused his death."

"For extraordinary heroism in action near La Pallette Pavillon, France, October 4, 1918. Having taken command of his company after the company commander and second in command had been wounded, Lieutenant Rogers personally undertook a reconnaissance of the front line. Crawling forward alone under intense rifle and machine gun fire for two hundred yards, to within thirty yards of an enemy machine gun nest, he was seriously wounded in the knee, but, applying a tourniquet to his leg, he succeeded in crawling back to his company. Here he resumed command, and though suffering intense pain, gave instructions for repelling an expected counter-attack, directing that no man be taken from the firing line to carry him to the rear. For seven hours after being wounded he remained with his command, inspiring his men by his fortitude and courage."
